The weather man had a snowstorm ordered for last night but it failed to materialize for which we are duly thankful.

Bids Wanted.

Sealed proposals will be received up to 12 o'clock noon of April 29, 1905, by the Board of Directors of the State Orphans' Home for the construction and laying of a sewer from the new building of the Orphans' Home according to plans and specifications in the hands of the superintendent of the said home. The pipe is to be 8 inch glazed pipe. Any portion of the said sewer running on the surface of the ground shall be laid in 2 inch red wood boxes well nailed.

The successful bidder is to supply all the material, dig the ditch and also to furnish two (2) automatic siphon flush tanks of Potter design like J. B. Cuss' A-629, one of which is to be set up and properly connected with the sewer in basement of the building.

Plans and specifications will be found at the State Orphans' Home on application. The Board of directors reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

Proposals to be delivered to Orvis Ring, Secretary of the Board.

Young Capurro Found.

John Capurro, who has been missing from the family home at Laughton's Springs, Washoe County, the past three weeks, was captured at Sparks yesterday while boarding a breakbeam on an east bound freight. A reward of $50 for information of the young man's whereabouts was offered by his father. Young Capurro explained that he had left home on account of ill treatment and his return may not be welcomed as cordially as that of the prodigal.

J. P. Woodbury, superintendent of the Silver Hill, shipped by last night's express to San Francisco one bar of gold bullion valued at $4,657 53. The five year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ruckteschier was wounded in the POLITICIAN TURNS PROSPECTOR.

Senator Stewart With His Camp Outfit and Four in Hand Starts to Explore the Southern Country.

Yesterday afternoon Senator Stewart left Carson with a camping outfit with the intention of prospecting the Southern country near Goldfield. He had a four in hand with a driver. Two mules as wheelers and horses in the lead.

He had a couple of swamper and accompanying him was his old friend J. C. Hagerman as counsellor and guide.

The two have fought many a hard political fight together and if there was any other kind of a mix up presenting itself along the route old Hagerman would "be there with the bells."

The wagon is rigged up with broad tired wheels for the sandy deserts and built above are seats running lengthways over the edge of the wagon and a bow shaped canvas canopy which can be fastened down so as to protect the inmates from the storm. All sorts of contrivances to enhance the comfort of the travellers are apparent as one inspects the outfit.

The Senator is an old miner and prospector and his experience counts. There is nothing he cannot do from cooking, foraging for wood or cinching mules. In case of a night attack he can handle a gun with any plainsman west of the Missouri.

The outfit was stacked with all kinds of miners tools and an assaying plant and the party was well heeled.

The old Senator who is verging along toward the ninety timberline was as full of enthusiasm as a boy and looked as if he could get out and walk to Goldfield or Bullfrog and not feel it.

He was as rugged as ever and as full of life and spirits.

He did not take along any silver speeches but is out to look for gold now and get a new start in life on a gold standard basis.

He had some law books, picks and shovels and six shooters. It looks as though a man could get about any kind of a game he was looking for by applying to Stewart on the premises.

It is not probable that he will bother with any of the old camps. He is a natural pioneer and will start a new camp with new diggings and new excitement. The old man is always in the van when he starts. The Appeal advances men in search of excitement to get on his trail. Success to him.

Tonopah Men Scrap.

A well known hotel in San Francisco was the scene of a lively fight yesterday afternoon between Zeb Kendall and Jim Campbell, two well known men of Tonopah and but for the fact that both were unarmed a fatality was probably averted.

A GOOD CIRCUS NAME.

Norris and Rowe Known as a House Hold Word for Honesty of Purpose.

Enthusiasm, together with a pardonable pride in a good name are cardinal virtues of the honest showman and these traits Messrs. Norris and Rowe, the earnest young American showmen possess to a marked degree. The time has long passed when rash promises made by irresponsible managers of the little fly-by-night circus can convince the public who look to the circus for healthy entertainment and relaxation from the cares of their busy work-a-day lives. This healthy enjoyment everyone is entitled to, for all work and no play would surely make Jack a very bad boy indeed. The telegraph and modern journal soon record the success or failure of any business enterprise—whether it be in the trade, theatrical or circus world and in consequence the bad shows are soon shunned, while the ones that have lived up to its promises, is accorded generous patronage. The value of a good name in the world of white tents is greater than has been estimated. Norris and Rowe deeply appreciate this and they are determined to leave an unsullied reputation to the generation following them. These young showmen have brought to this section many meritorious circus enjoyments but it remains for them to surpass themselves this year and eclipse all former efforts. Every dollar of last season's successful venture has been put into their new and greater circus.

They have new trains in sections of twenty cars each, all new dens, cages, wagons. Two menageries, standard bred stock, equestrian feats of the highest grade, far famed athletes in sensational aerial feats, acrobats, gymnasts, posturers, leapers, vaulters, jugglers, equilibrists, Japanese swordsmen, lady and gentlemen expert riders, performing wild animals etc. It takes over 500 employees and performers to give the show.

Messrs. Norris and Rowe are satisfied that the public will coincide with them and that they are justly entitled this year to designate their shows as the Norris and Rowe Greater Circus. Exhibitions will be given at Carson City Saturday April 22 at 2 and 8 p. m.
